STARLUX Airlines partners with Lufthansa Systems to optimize Codeshare Management

Raunheim, 5th March 2025. Lufthansa Systems announced that the Taiwanese carrier STARLUX Airlines has opted for the schedule management solution SchedConnect. This solution helps streamline codeshare management and schedule data exchange, increasing efficiency and profitability, and it builds the central flight repository within STARLUX Airlines.

SchedConnect offers STARLUX a comprehensive, high-automation solution to manage the complexities of codeshare partnerships. It enables real-time schedule synchronization between STARLUX and its codeshare partners. Calculating the most optimal connections, SchedConnect ensures an elevated journey for passengers, including seamless transfers across different carriers.

“With SchedConnect, we can identify potential new codeshare connections within the network and easily set them up in the system. By optimizing our codeshare connections, SchedConnect will not only enhance our competitiveness in reservation systems but also reduce the chances of customer claims and pricing errors due to schedule discrepancies,” said Ashley Liu, Manager of Flight Scheduling Team, Corporate Planning Division at STARLUX Airlines. “This way, we can take the next step in expanding our global reach while maintaining the highest standards of operational efficiency. It integrates seamlessly with the scheduling and operations control solutions from Lufthansa Systems, which we already use.”

As more airlines adopt SchedConnect, the shared system fosters an integrated community of carriers working with the same data sources and algorithms, improving the industry’s overall connectivity and service quality.
